WILSON IN ENGLAND.

In London when the sun was low, And William Wilson dressed to go To that big banquet, donckerknow, His feelings surged tumultuously.

But England saw another sight: Her furnace fires were burning bright, And mills were running day and night, Thanks to Free-trade Democracy.

And brighter yet will burn those fires, While labor here still cheaper hires, And Democratic campaign liars Tell of our great prosperity.

ANOTHER OLD CITIZEN.

Death of Mr. James J. Mullins—The Funeral Services.

James Joseph Mullins was born in Cork, Ireland, March 17th, 1827, and died in Maysville, Ky., Monday evening, October 22d, 1894, at 9:30, aged 67 years.

Mr. Mullins was a brother of the late Mr. John J. Mullins, and also of the late Mrs. Eliza J. Wroten and Mrs. Daniel Hunt. He was never married.

He came to Maysville in 1853, and for many years was connected with the well known drygoods house of Mullins & Hunt, continuing in-business until bodily afflictions compelled his retirement several years ago.

At 2 o'clock Monday morning he was stricken with paralysis, and he lingered until last night when death came.

The funeral will occur from St. Patrick's Church at 9:30 Wednesday morning, the interment being at Washington.

It's all over now. Yesterday was the last day for putting the names of candidates on the election tickets.

Mrs. Mary C. Wall of Nine Mile, near New Richmond, took a strychnine pill by mistake and died in three hours.

The Independent ticket in Fayette county will be D. C. Logan for County Judge, Joe Downing for Jailor and William D. Bryant for Coroner.

Don't forget that there are three more days on which you can register if you were sick or out of the city on Registration Day—October 29th, 30th and 31st. Go either day to the County Clerk's Office and he will put your name on the list.

The Young Ladies' Prayer-meeting is held every Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. All young ladies interested in the salvation of their souls and the souls of others are earnestly invited to attend these meetings.

Gracious! How they are scared! Our friends the enemy are on the run! Not satisfied with flooding the county with every jackleg speaker that could be gotten hold of, and with having Senator Blackburn and Pwat Hardin at the Court-house, they now announce Hon. William Preston Kimball for a speech at the Courthouse Thursday evening.

The large tobacco barn of John Scott, near Owingsville, was burned by an incendiary. Some time since Mr. Scott was the victim of some fiend who destroyed the machinery belonging to his sawmill. A few months since his tobacco barn was burned. He rebuilt, and had just housed this year's crop when it was burned again. Neither barn nor tobacco was insured.

Miss Rosa Pickett, the accomplished daughter of Dr. Thomas E. Pickett, entertained five couples of her select friends at dinner Saturday evening. Those present were: Miss Higginbotham and Mr. Percy Lee Mannen, Miss Owens and Mr. Horace January Cochran, Miss Hocker and Mr. Henry Wadsworth, Miss Shelby, the guest of honor, and Mr. J. Banks Durrett, Miss Pickett and Mr. James Barbour.

A committee of parishioners at Pater-son, N. J., forced their way into a house where Mgr. Satolli was being entertained and denounced him for approving the removal of their assistant Pastor. Members of the parish have adopted resolutions indorsing the conduct of the committee and declaring that the matter would be appealed to Archbishop Corrigan, ignoring Mgr. Satolli. It's somewhat of a surprise that this indignity to the distinguished representative of His Holiness hasn't been charged on the A. P. A. But, then, if our Catholic brethren could only be made believe it, the A. P. A. has more respect for the Catholic religion than some of its own adherents, and an A. P. A. would as quickly resent an indignity to Mgr. Satolli as would the most devoted Catholic. Once more we say, the A. P. A. is not opposed to the Catholic religion.

ANOTHER SENSATION.

A Middlesborough Mayor Pursued By a Maysville Maiden.

D. E. McDowell, ex-Mayor of Middlesborough, was a prisoner in the Louisville Police Court yesterday, charged with grand larceny.

The prosecuting witness is Miss Lou Bullock, formerly of Maysville, and daughter of Rev. J. W. Bullock.

In the warrant for his arrest Miss Bullock swears that in May last McDowell stole $45 in money from her.

McDowell says he first met Miss Bullock at Middlesborough four years ago; that he always treated her as a friend; met her frequently in society; that she at one time gave out the statement that they were to be married, and that his denial of the story was the beginning of his troubles. He had been arrested five times on various charges preferred by her, each time being acquitted. He hasn't a word to say against her, but thinks her slightly unbalanced mentally.

Miss Bullock is a handsome woman of 25, and when asked for a statement of her side of the case she refused to make any, and threatened to take her life if the least mention of the affair was made in the newspapers.

Sending for Prosecuting Attorney Thurman she demanded that he keep the matter secret and asked that the trial take place in chambers. She seemed desirous of settling the matter without publicity, and even wished to withdraw the warrant.

The attorneys for Mr. McDowell refused, however, to agree to any such arrangement, saying that the matter had gone too far for such a settlement.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Dick Carr and Charley Huff vs. A Barbed Wire Fence.

Richard A. Carr and Charles T. Huff started in a buggy for Flemingsburg yesterday forenoon.

Near Graham Lee's place at the top of the first big hill they met a party of movers, who were driving some cows.

Their horse was not on speaking terms with cows, and didn't want to be, so he proceeded to give them the entire right of way.

In doing so he dumped buggy and occupants down a steep bank and through a barbed wire fence.

Mr. Huff's knee was considerably hurt, his hat was badly damaged, and his best coat is at the tailor's.

Mr. Carr fared worse. His body looks as though it had gone through a sausage-mill, and his clothes await the arrival of the rag merchant.

Fortunately, however, his injuries are not serious, though Doctor Browning had a tedious job patching up the broken places in his skin.

The buggy can be repaired for a few dollars.

Altogether it was a narrow escape.

"FREE RAW MATERIAL."

What a Prominent Virginia Democrat Has To Say.

Major Jed Hotchkiss of Staunton, Va., known to the world as the brilliant Chief of Engineers under Stonewall Jackson, and whose devotion to the industrial development of the South is everywhere recognized, in a recent interview published in The Washington Post, makes some statements worthy of careful consideration.

Major Hotchkiss, in discussing the question of free coal and iron ore, says:

"It is stupendous folly to talk about these things being raw material, especially coal, a ton of which in the ground is worth not exceeding 10 cents, but the minute it is delivered for shipment is worth $2 or $2 25 laid down at Newport News."

"It is the promulgation of such doctrines that is giving the Democrats so much trouble in West Virginia."

"A good many former Democrats are leaving the party in both Virginias on account of the threat to put coal and iron ore on the free list. I say leaving party, but the party is really leaving them, for back in 1888, when the Mills Bill was being considered, I brought a petition to Washington signed by every member of both Houses of the Virginia Legislature, asking Congress to let the tariff on coal and iron ore remain at 75 cents. The late Senator Barbour took the petition to the committee and asked that the 75-cent rate be retained."

"Now, because of the reversal of that policy, the Democracy is threatened with serious loss. In the two mineral Districts of Virginia, represented now by Mr. Marshall and Mr. Tucker, there is a strong sentiment for protecting these interests. General Walker, the Republican nominee, may succeed, and nothing could keep him from winning if Mr. Morrison, his Democratic opponent, were not in favor of Protection. A lot of our people are old-time Whigs, who would rather vote the Democratic ticket, all things being equal; but they will not support a Representative who refuses to stand by their interest at the National capital."

"Thus it will be observed that Protection is the business idea in the Virginias and other Southern states. It is gratifying to see the business men of the South studying this great question which is of vital importance to every citizen. It is best to look at the tariff from a business point of view and that is what people are now doing."

QUEER BUSINESS IDEAS.

VERY IMPRESSIVE LESSON FOR AMERICAN WORKMEN.

Logan Carlisle's Jack-Knife Theories Applied to Our Foreign Trade—Imports Exceed Exports 3 to 1.

A Washington special says that Administration Democrats are contemplating, with a strange philosophy, the movement of trade at the present time.

According to the idea of some of them it is to the advantage of the United States to go into the importation business and to become small exporters.

The fact that during the month of September our exports fell off thirteen millions, and the imports increased four millions, as compared with September of last year, was called up in conversation with Logan Carlisle, his father's Chief Clerk of the Treasury Department, by a Commercial Gazette correspondent.

Mr. Carlisle laughed at the notion that there was anything about that condition of affairs that was to be discouraged. He pulled his pocket-knife out and, placing it on the elegant mahogany desk before him, said:

"I'll trade jackknives with you on that same basis. You give me two jackknives for my one. I'll keep that up as long as you like, and we will see who has the best of the bargain."

Mr. Carlisle's attention was called to fact that the United States and foreign countries were not trading in jackknives, but gold dollars, but that statement had no fear for him. "When the time for settlement comes," he continued, "I will simply sell some of my jackknives and settle. It ought to be remembered that it is not the United States, but individuals, who are trading. When you convince me that a Yankee is getting the worst of a bargain, as an individual, I will be ready to believe that the United States, as a Nation, is getting the worst of it. No, trade is the result of an advantage to some one, and freedom never yet hurt anybody, much less a Yankee."

NICE PICTURE FOR WORKINGMEN.

This is the substance of an argument that is being indorsed by many Administration Democrats, and if such a fallacy should live for a few years and Free-trade legislation should be secured because of its influence it is quite certain that there will be more empty factories and more workingmen looking for jobs, looking upon themselves as blessed if they can get wages that will give them a bare existence. The idea that the Nation having imports in excess of its exports is most fortunate is too absurd to be entertained by an intelligent man for a moment. If the trade of the world were in jackknives, according to the illustration of the son of the Secretary of the Treasury, it would be an advantage to get two for one. When it is in gold dollars the situation is changed. The inequality of imports and exports can be made up only by shipments of gold, and trade will continue only so long as there is a surplus of gold to export. The moment there is no surplus to export foreign countries will no longer consent to send out goods of a greater value than those they receive.

The jackknife theory of the Democrats is seen in its truest light when it is applied to individual cases. What merchant is there who considers himself fortunate and prosperous when the bills rendered against him during a month are greater than the bills he renders against his customers? Yet it is the men who believe this fallacy who are at the helm in Washington, and will remain there until the American people show their sound sense by not indorsing their fallacies at the ballot-box next month. It is the Nation that is selling the most that is most prosperous, as is the case with individuals, and the clearing-house determines in whose favor is the balance of trade.

No one for a moment doubts that the Yankee is getting the best of the bargain—that is, the Yankee who happens to be the importer, and who sells foreign-made goods in American markets, but he receives the advantage at the expense of his fellows, and especially the workingmen, whose life-savings are now being paid out to purchase foreign-made goods, while they are standing about waiting for a job and wondering what they will do when their little store of funds, accumulated under a Protective Tariff, gives out. They will not then appreciate Logan Carlisle's jackknife theory.

MOST SERVICEABLE COLOR.

FASHION AND ECONOMY BOTH APPROVE BLACK COLORING.

An Easy Way of Home Dyeing—Cotton, Wool, Silk and Feathers Readily Colored a Handsome Black—Use Only Diamond Dyes—Absolutely Fast Black.

It is only within the last few years that it has been possible for an inexperienced person to dye a black that would not crock, fade, or wash out. Even mill-dyed black goods were rarely absolutely fast.

The advent of three diamond dye fast blacks,—for wool, for cotton, and for silk and feathers,—has changed all this. Now, with a ten cent package of one of these dyes, the first trial gives perfect success. The directions on the packages are so plain and simple that even a child can get better results than the experienced dyer could a few years ago.

The prevailing fashion for black stockings, feathers, gowns, and cloaks, and the fact that anything can be colored with diamond dyes, a black that will not crock or fade, explains their almost universal use.

The peculiar way in which the diamond dye fast blacks are made, gives them a great superiority over all other methods of home dyeing.

There are some forty other colors of diamond dyes, each of which is thoroughly reliable, and as superior to imitations as sunshine is to moonlight.

OUT OF COURT.

No New Trial of the Breckinridge-Pollard Salaciousness.

The Breckinridge-Pollard case is now formally out of Court, the notice of appeal given by Colonel Breckinridge at the close of the trial having been docketed and dismissed on motion of Calderon Carlisle, Miss Pollard's counsel.

The action of the Court was merely one of form, counsel for Breckinridge having failed to follow up their notice of appeal by further proceedings within the time provided by law.

This ends the case, with a judgment for $15,000 standing in Miss Pollard's favor against Colonel Breckinridge.

Though the judgment stands on record in the Court, the general opinion is that Miss Pollard will be unable to collect, as Colonel Breckinridge is not known to have any property which can be attached to satisfy it.

WALES PAYS THE TARIFF.

Wages of Tinsplate Workers Will Be Cut Thirty Per Cent.

A special from Indianapolis says J. H. Rogers of Wales, who is President of the tin industry in this country under the reduced tariff, Mr. Rogers stated that it would continue, but at a greatly reduced cost of manufacture.

Asked what would be the future of the tin industry in this country under the reduced tariff, Mr. Rogers stated that it would continue, but at a greatly reduced cost of manufacture.

The only way to cheapen the cost of production, he said, was to reduce wages, and with a tariff of only one and two-tenths cent per pound, wages would have to be cut not less than thirty per cent.

The only alternative was the return of the industry to Wales.

The question of wages, he said, was now under consideration between the workmen and the manufacturers, and the presumption was that tinsplate workers would accept the cut rather than quit work.

It is either accept the cut or shut down the mills.

Mr. Rogers said that his employees at Gas City received from $35 to $40 a week, which was about three times the Wales scale.

Wales, he said, would make a great effort to get back the tin industry, which, under the McKinley Bill, she was in a fair way to lose.

In another five years America would have been manufacturing all the tinsplate used in this country, and the high scale of wages would have been maintained.

UNDER THE NEW TARIFF WALES IS ABLE TO PAY THE DUTY AND THE FREIGHT AND UNDERSELL THE AMERICAN PRODUCT IN THE VERY HEART OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. Rogers stated that if he lived in this country he would certainly be a Republican.

Colonel John K. Faulkner, ex-Collector of Customs of Louisville, now located at Richmond, while attempting to reboard the Southern train from Louisville at Lawrenceburg, lost his footing and fell to the side of the track, sustaining very painful but not serious injuries.
